Survey Methods and Results

Introduction

The City of Lincoln (City) retained Mead & Hunt, Inc. (Mead & Hunt) to conduct a reconnaissance-level survey of all properties located within the Eastridge Neighborhood survey area. The survey boundaries were defined by the City to encompass six Eastridge Additions platted between 1953 and 1960 (see Figure 1 for a map of the survey area).

In July 2006 architectural historians from Mead & Hunt completed a reconnaissance-level Nebraska Historic Buildings Survey (NeHBS) of all properties within the survey area. This area had not been included in previous city of Lincoln Certified Local Government (Lincoln CLG) survey efforts.

Survey methodology

The purpose of the reconnaissance-level NeHBS was to document all properties located within the survey area. Properties were photographed and recorded in the NeHBS database. Properties were then evaluated to determine if the collection of Trend Homes may be eligible for the National Register of Historic Places (National Register) as a historic district. For more information on the NeHBS and Lincoln CLG, see Preservation in Nebraska.

Survey area

The survey area was defined by the City to include properties located within the six Eastridge Additions to the City. Generally, the survey area is bounded by L Street in the north, Cotner Boulevard and South 56th Street in the west, A Street in the south, and the extent of the Eastridge Additions in the east (see Figure 1).

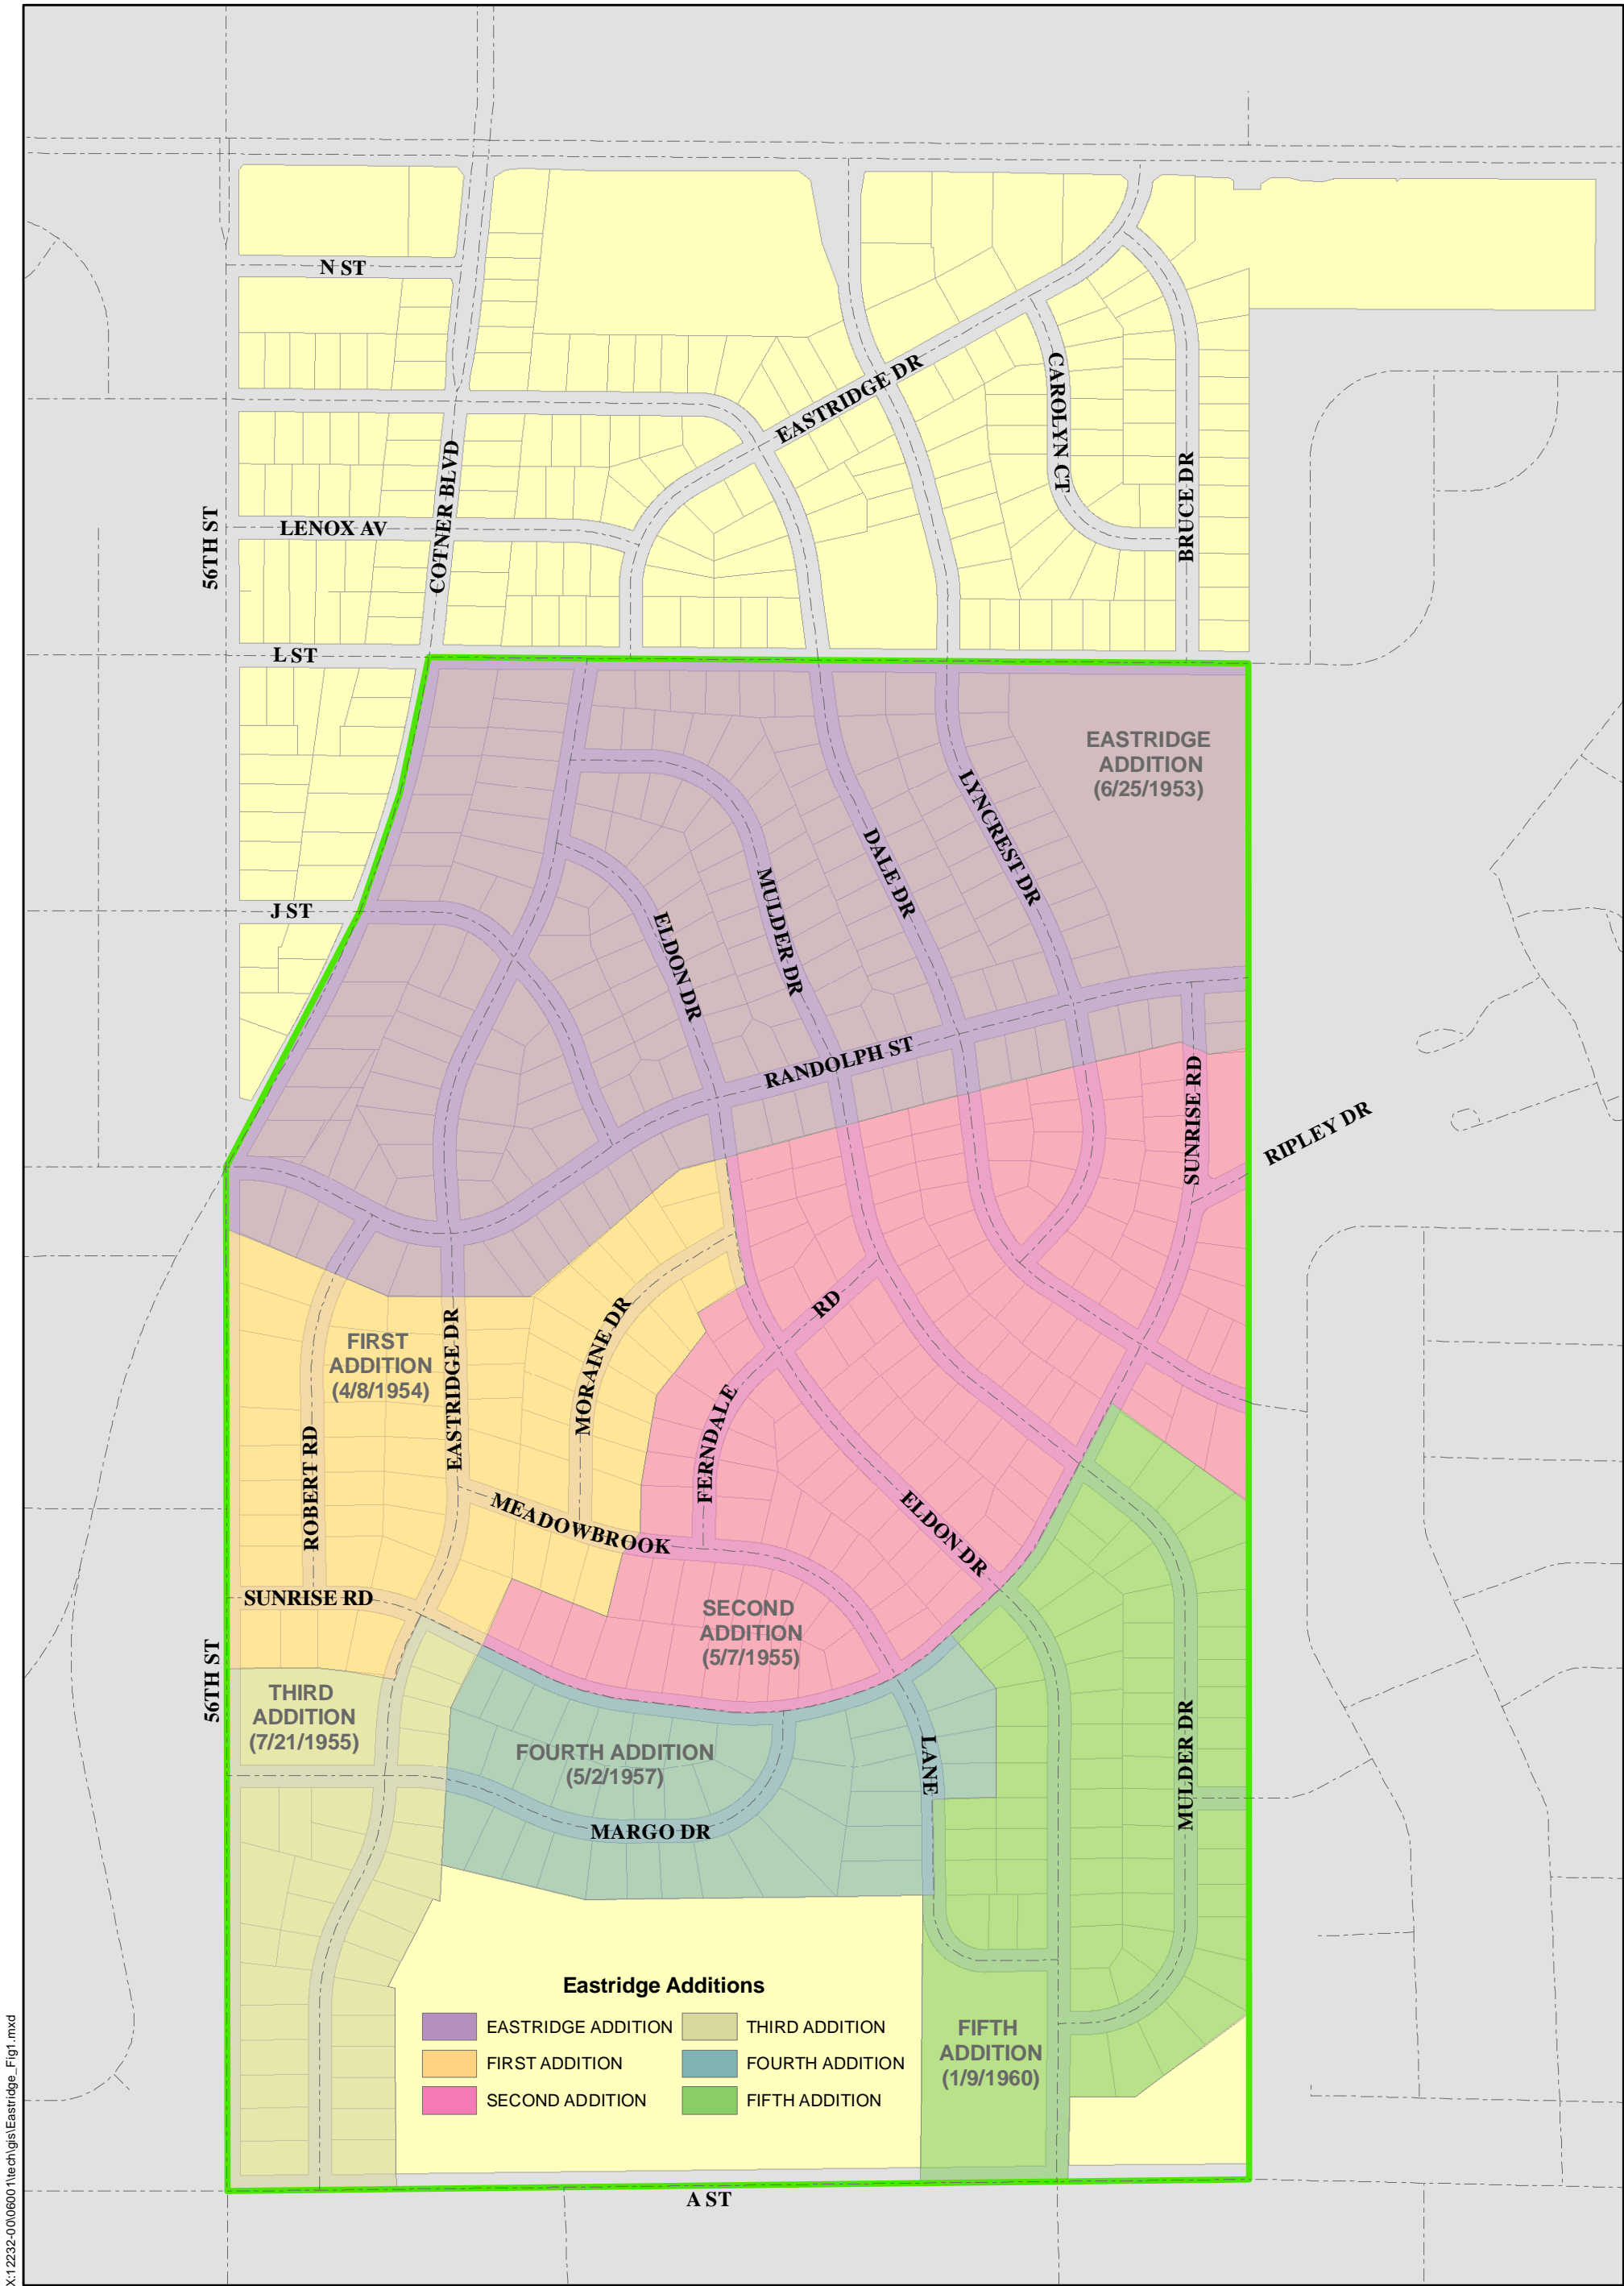

Trend Homes on Moraine Drive

The majority of residences in the survey area were constructed between 1953 and c.1960. Strauss Brothers, a Lincoln construction company, was responsible for the platting and development of the six Eastridge Additions. Strauss Brothers worked with Lincoln-based architects John and George Unthank to develop a system of homes that utilized innovative designs and modern innovations. The result was the “Trend Home,” an L-shaped home that reflected the popular Ranch style of the 1950s with an integrated carport or garage.

1957 aerial view of the Eastridge area showing the extent of initial development

The Eastridge area developed within a relatively short period of time, with the original plat and three additions platted by 1956. In less than a decade, the majority of homes were constructed and few lots were left vacant for future infill development. It appears that the earliest homes, built between 1953 and 1956, are located in the Eastridge Addition, Eastridge First Addition, Eastridge Second Addition, and Eastridge Third Addition. Homes on the peripheries of these additions appear to have been built between 1956 and c.1960. The Eastridge Fourth Addition, centered on Margo Drive, was platted in 1957 and homes along this street were constructed between 1957 and c.1960. The Eastridge Fifth Addition was platted in 1960 and the majority of homes in this addition were constructed by c.1970.

Evaluation

During the field survey, architectural historians drove known public streets and documented all properties located within the survey area. Properties located within the survey area were evaluated individually and collectively for the potential to contribute to a potential historic district. Historic districts include concentrations of related buildings, structures, sites, and objects that are important representatives of historic and/or architectural themes. Within potential historic districts, resources are considered either contributing or noncontributing.

Contributing: Resources in a district that are generally more than 50 years old, maintain a sufficient level of integrity, and represent the important historic and/or architectural themes of the district.

Noncontributing: Resources in a district that do not meet the 50-year guideline or do not maintain a significant level of integrity to represent the important historic and/or architectural themes of the district.

Documentation

Architectural historians documented all properties located in the survey area as outlined in the NeHBS Manual and according to the specific requirements of the Lincoln CLG. Photographic documentation included two black-and-white photographs and digital images of each property, with representative streetscape views to demonstrate notable features within the survey area.¹

Highly intact Trend Home on Dale Drive

¹ At the request of the property owners, survey photographs were not taken of 521 Eastridge Drive and 700 Lyncrest Drive.

Products submitted to the City include the survey findings report, black-and-white photograph contact prints and negatives, digital images, and a NeHBS database. A booklet was also developed that outlines the history and significance of the Trend Homes in the Eastridge development.

National Register of Historic Places

The National Register is the official federal list of districts, sites, buildings, structures, landscapes, and objects significant in American history, architecture, archaeology, engineering, and culture. A property can be significant at the local, state, or national level. To qualify for listing in the National Register, properties generally must be at least 50 years old, possess historical or architectural significance, and retain physical integrity.

To be listed in the National Register, a property's significance must be demonstrated by one or more of the following National Register criteria for evaluation established by the National Park Service (NPS):

- Criterion A – Association with events or activities that have made a significant contribution to the broad patterns of our history.
- Criterion B – Association with the lives of persons significant in our past.
- Criterion C – Association with the distinctive characteristics of a type, period, or method of construction, or represents the work of a master, possesses high artistic values, or represents a significant and distinguishable entity whose components may lack individual distinction.
- Criterion D – Holds the potential to provide important information about prehistory or history.

Cemeteries, birthplaces, gravesites, religious properties, moved buildings, reconstructed properties, commemorative properties, and properties that have achieved significance within the last 50 years are usually considered ineligible for listing in the National Register. However, these properties may qualify if they fall into one of the following categories:

- Religious properties deriving significance from architectural or artistic distinction or historical importance.
- Moved properties that are significant for architectural value.
- Birthplaces or gravesites if there is no other appropriate site directly associated with a significant person's productive life.
- Cemeteries that derive primary significance from graves of persons of transcendent importance, from age, distinctive design features, or from association with historic events.
- Reconstructed buildings when built in a suitable environment.

- Commemorative properties with significant design, age, tradition, or symbolic value.
- Properties less than 50 years old that are of exceptional importance.

Integrity, meaning the ability of a property to convey its significance, is important in determining the eligibility of a property. A property's integrity must be evident through physical qualities, including the following:

- Location
- Design
- Setting
- Materials
- Workmanship
- Feeling
- Association

Survey results

Five hundred and one residential properties located within the survey boundaries were surveyed and evaluated for the potential to be included in a historic district. Four hundred twenty-six properties are recommended to be within a potential historic district. See the Appendix for a complete list of surveyed properties.

Recommendations

As a result of this survey, Mead & Hunt recommends the Eastridge Trend Home Historic District as potentially eligible for the National Register. The district is significant under Criterion C: Architecture as a cohesive concentration of intact Trend Homes. The district retains a high degree of integrity and limited infill development has occurred since the initial development during the 1950s. Together, the residences in the proposed district reflect popular architectural trends of the 1950s and convey a strong sense of time and place.

The Eastridge Trend Home Historic District is also significant under Criterion A: Community Planning and Development. The Eastridge neighborhood reflects an important historic trend in postwar residential development in Lincoln, Nebraska. This concentration of homes, constructed in a brief period of time, reflects the innovations in residential architecture developed by Lincoln builders and architects to meet the needs of Lincoln residents in the years following World War II.

The proposed historic district boundary was delineated to encompass the concentration of Trend Homes that demonstrate this distinctive development. Concentrations of properties that post-date the Trend Home development were not included in the boundary. Please see Figure 2 for a map of the proposed historic district boundary.

This portion of Mulder Drive retains a strong sense of time and place

The proposed historic district boundaries incorporate the Eastridge Addition, Eastridge First Addition, Eastridge Second Addition, Eastridge Third Addition, and Eastridge Fourth Addition, which were platted between 1953 and 1957 (see Figure 1). The Eastridge Fifth Addition, platted in 1960, includes residences that post-date the initial Trend Home construction period and do not contribute to the overall character of the historic district. Therefore, this addition was not included in the proposed historic district boundary. Properties fronting Cotner Boulevard were also not included in the proposed boundary. These are not located in the original Eastridge Addition and do not contribute to the overall character of the district.

Home on Mulder Drive in the Eastridge Fifth Addition that post dates the initial Trend Home development

Typical Cotner Boulevard residence that is not consistent with the Trend Home form

Four hundred and thirteen of the 426 properties located within the proposed historic boundaries, or 97 percent, were identified as contributing elements. These properties maintain sufficient integrity and reflect architectural themes consistent with Strauss Brothers-built Trend Homes in the Eastridge neighborhood. Thirteen properties have been identified as noncontributing since they display diminished integrity and no longer reflect their historic Trend Home appearance. These homes have had alterations that mask the original appearance, such as large additions that are visible from the facade. Generally, the addition of artificial siding or replacement windows did not qualify a property as noncontributing, as long as the property was able to convey its original Trend Home form.

Additional intensive-level research and review by the Nebraska State Historic Preservation Office (NeSHPO) and the Lincoln CLG are recommended before pursuing National Register designation for the Eastridge Trend Home Historic District. Intensive-level research should include a review of building permits of all homes within the survey area to determine their construction date and confirm their association with Strauss Builders. The proposed Eastridge Trend Home Historic District should also be evaluated for Local Landmark eligibility.

Properties in the survey collectively represent this period of postwar development and architecture and no individual properties were identified as potentially eligible for the National Register.

Preservation in Nebraska

Throughout much of Nebraska's history, historic preservation was the province of dedicated individuals and organizations working alone in local communities. Since the passage of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, however, the governor of each state has been required to appoint a State Historic Preservation Officer (SHPO) to oversee preservation efforts mandated by the Act. In Nebraska, the Director of the Nebraska State Historical Society (NSHS) serves as SHPO. The staff of the NSHS' Historic Preservation Division forms the NeSHPO.

The NeSHPO administers a wide range of preservation programs. The duties of the NeSHPO relating to programs called for by the National Historic Preservation Act include the following:

- Conducting and maintaining a statewide historic building survey.
- Administering the National Register program.
- Assisting local governments in the development of historic preservation programs and certification of qualifying governments.
- Assisting federal agencies in their responsibility to identify and protect historic properties that may be affected by their projects.
- Administering a federal tax incentives program for the preservation of historic buildings.

In addition to these duties, Nebraska has a state-sponsored financial incentive for preservation called the Valuation Incentive Program, which the NeSHPO administers.

What follows is a brief description of NeSHPO programs, followed by a staff guide with telephone numbers. Though described separately, it is important to remember that NeSHPO programs often act in concert with other programs and should be considered elements of the NeSHPO mission and a part of the mission of the NSHS.

Nebraska Historic Buildings Survey

The NeHBS was begun in 1974. The survey is conducted on a county-by-county basis and currently includes more than 69,000 properties that reflect the rich architectural and historic heritage of Nebraska. The survey is conducted by researchers who drive every rural and urban public road in a county and record each property that meets certain historic requirements. Surveyors do not enter private property without permission. In addition to this fieldwork, surveyors research the history of the area to better understand their subject. The NeHBS often includes thematic subjects that may be unique to a certain county such as a historic highway or type of industry.

The purpose of the NeHBS is to help local preservation advocates, elected officials, land-use planners, economic development coordinators, and tourism promoters understand the wealth of historic properties in their community. Properties included in the survey have no use restrictions placed on them, nor does the survey require any level of maintenance or accessibility by property owners. Rather, the survey provides a foundation for identifying properties that may be worthy of preservation, promotion, and recognition within a community.

The NeHBS provides a basis for preservation and planning at all levels of government and for individual groups or citizens. Generally, the NeHBS includes properties that convey a sense of architectural significance. When possible and known, NeHBS also describes properties that have historical significance. The survey is not intended to be a comprehensive history of a county, but a detailed “first look” at historic properties. Additionally, because the NeHBS is in part federally funded, the NeSHPO must use federal guidelines when evaluating and identifying historic properties. In short, the NeHBS is not an end in itself, but a beginning for public planners and individuals that value their community’s history.

For more information, please call the Survey Coordinator listed below.

National Register of Historic Places

One of the goals of the NeHBS is to help identify properties that may be eligible for listing in the National Register. The National Register is our nation’s official list of significant historic properties. Created by the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, the National Register includes buildings, structures, districts, objects, and sites that are significant in our history or prehistory. These properties may reflect a historically significant pattern, event, person, architectural style, or archaeological site. National Register properties may be significant at the local, state, or national levels.

Properties need not be as historic as Mount Vernon or architecturally spectacular as the Nebraska State Capitol to be listed in the National Register. Local properties that retain their physical integrity and convey local historic significance may also be listed in the National Register.

It is important to note what listing a property in the National Register means or, perhaps more importantly, what it does not mean. The National Register does not:

- Restrict, in any way, a private property owner's ability to alter, manage, or dispose of a property.
- Require that properties be maintained, repaired, or restored.
- Invoke special zoning or local landmark designation.
- Allow the listing of an individual private property over an owner’s objection.
- Allow the listing of a historic district over a majority of property owners’ objections.

- Require public access to private property.

Listing a property in the National Register does:

- Provide prestigious recognition to significant properties.
- Encourage the preservation of historic properties.
- Provide information about historic properties for local and statewide planning purposes.
- Help promote community development, tourism, and economic development.
- Provide basic eligibility for financial incentives, when available.

For more information, please call the National Register Coordinator listed below.

Certified Local Governments

An important goal of the NeSHPO is to translate the federal preservation program, as embodied by the National Historic Preservation Act, to the local level. One element of this goal is to link local governments with a nationwide network of federal, state, and local organizations. One of the most effective tools for this purpose is the CLG program. A CLG is a local government, either a county or municipality that has adopted preservation as a priority. To become a CLG, a local government must:

- Establish a preservation ordinance that includes protection for historic properties at a level the community decides is appropriate.
- Promote preservation education and outreach.
- Conduct and maintain some level of a historic building survey.
- Establish a mechanism to designate local landmarks.
- Create a preservation commission to oversee the preservation ordinance and the CLG program.

The advantages of achieving CLG status include:

- A CLG is eligible to receive matching funds from the NeSHPO that are unavailable to non-CLGs.
- Contributing buildings within local landmark districts may be eligible for preservation tax incentives (see below), without being listed in the National Register.
- Through the use of their landmarking and survey programs, CLGs have an additional tool when considering planning, zoning, and land-use issues relating to historic properties.

- CLGs have the ability to monitor and preserve structures that reflect the community's heritage.
- CLGs have access to a nationwide information network of local, state, federal, and private preservation institutions.
- Finally, but not least, a CLG through its ordinance and commission has a built-in mechanism to promote pride in, and understanding of, a community's history.

Certification of a local government for CLG status comes from the NeSHPO and the NPS, and there are general rules to follow. A community considering CLG status, however, is given broad flexibility within those rules when structuring its CLG program. The emphasis of the CLG program is local management of historic properties with technical and economic assistance from the NeSHPO.

Lincoln Certified Local Government and Historic Preservation Commission

The Lincoln Historic Preservation Commission was established by vote of the City Council in 1980 and was accorded CLG status in 1985. A chief responsibility of a CLG is to maintain a survey of local historic properties and local history research. The survey gathers data related to the City's historic resources. A survey defines the historic character of a community or particular area and can provide the basis for making sound judgments in local planning.

Since becoming a CLG, 11 areas have been designated as Local Landmark and/or National Register districts and approximately 90 individual properties, sites, or structures have been designated as Local Landmarks or listed in the National Register. These range from a locally built locomotive to a 150-acre cemetery and 500-acre park.

The CLG also participates in extensive outreach and educational efforts to diverse audiences and supports redevelopment and rehabilitation activities in areas such as the Haymarket District and the Historic Downtown.

Federal project review

Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act requires that federal agencies take into account the effect of their undertakings on historic properties; develop and evaluate alternatives that could avoid, minimize, or mitigate adverse effects their projects may have on historic properties; and afford the federal Advisory Council on Historic Preservation an opportunity to comment on the project and its effects on historic properties. The regulations that govern the Section 106 process, as it is known, also require that the federal agency consult with the NeSHPO when conducting these activities.

For example, if the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA), through the Nebraska Department of Roads, contemplates construction of a new highway, FHWA must contact the NeSHPO for assistance in determining whether any sites or structures located in the project area are listed in, or eligible for listing in, the National Register. If properties that meet this criteria are found, the FHWA must consult with the NeSHPO to avoid or reduce any harm the highway might cause the property. Note that a property need not actually be listed in the National Register to be considered for protection, only to have been determined eligible for listing. This process is to take place early enough in the planning process to allow for alternatives that would avoid adverse effects to historic properties; i.e., in the example above, the modification of a new highway's right-of-way could avoid an archaeological site or historic barn.

It is important to note that public participation in this process is vital. The Section 106 process requires the federal agency to seek views of the public and interested parties if adverse effects to historic properties are discovered through consultation with the NeSHPO. The NeSHPO examines information provided by the federal agency, the NeHBS, and the National Register; but often the most valuable information comes from comments provided by the public. Section 106 was included in the National Historic Preservation Act to protect locally significant historic properties from unwitting federal action.

For more information about Section 106 review, please contact a member of the Federal Agency Review staff of the NeSHPO listed below.

Preservation tax incentives

Since 1976 the Internal Revenue Code has contained provisions offering tax credits for the certified rehabilitation of income-producing historic properties. Historic properties are defined as those listed in the National Register, or as buildings that contribute to the significance of a National Register or a locally landmarked historic district. An income-producing property may be a rental residential, office, commercial, or industrial property. Historic working barns or other agriculture-related outbuildings may also qualify.

A certified rehabilitation is one that conforms to the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation and Guidelines for Rehabilitating Historic Buildings. The standards are a common sense approach to the adaptive reuse of historic buildings. It is important to remember that this program promotes the rehabilitation of historic properties so that they may be used to the benefit and enjoyment of the property owner and a community. The program is not necessarily intended to reconstruct or restore historic buildings to exact, as-built specifications.

The tax incentive program in Nebraska has been responsible for:

- Reinvesting millions of dollars for the preservation of historic buildings.
- Establishing thousands of low- and moderate-income housing units and upper-income units.
- Encouraging the adaptive reuse of previously under or unutilized historic properties in older downtown commercial areas.
- Helping to broaden the tax base.

- Giving real estate developers and city planners the incentive to consider projects in older, historic neighborhoods.
- Helping stabilize older, historic neighborhoods.

Certification of the historic character of the income-producing property (usually by listing the property in the National Register) and certification of the historic rehabilitation is made by both the NeSHPO and the NPS. Before initiating any activity for a project that anticipates the use of preservation tax credits, owners should contact the NeSHPO and a professional tax advisor, legal counsel, or appropriate local Internal Revenue Service office.

For more information, please call the Preservation Tax Incentives Coordinator listed below.

Valuation Incentive Program

The Valuation Incentive Program (VIP) is a property tax incentive that assists in the preservation of Nebraska's historic buildings. Through the valuation preference, the assessed valuation of a historic property is frozen for 8 years at the year rehabilitation is begun. The valuation then rises to its market level over a period of 4 years.

To be eligible for this state tax incentive, a building must:

- Be a qualified historic structure, either by listing in the National Register or by local landmark designation through an approved local ordinance.
- Be substantially rehabilitated, which means the project must be worth at least 25 percent of the property's base-year assessed value.
- Be rehabilitated in accordance with the Secretary of the Interior's Standards for Rehabilitation and Guidelines for Rehabilitating Historic Buildings.

Buildings must be a qualified historic structure and the NeSHPO must approve the rehabilitation before construction work starts in order to qualify for the tax freeze benefits.

The tax freeze benefits the owners of the historic properties and the community by:

- Providing a real economic incentive to rehabilitate historic buildings.
- Increasing the long-term tax base of a community.
- Helping stabilize older, historic neighborhoods and commercial areas.
- Encouraging the promotion, recognition, and designation of historic buildings.

- Allowing participation by local governments that enact approved historic preservation ordinances.

For more information about VIP, please contact the NeSHPO at the contact numbers listed below.

Public outreach and education

The primary function of the NeSHPO is to assist communities in preserving significant buildings, sites, and structures that convey a sense of community history. The most powerful tool available to the NeSHPO in this regard is public education. For this reason, NeSHPO staff spend considerable time conducting public meetings and workshops and disseminating information to the public.

The NeSHPO's goal is to assist local individuals, groups, and governments understand, promote, and preserve historic properties. The NeSHPO advocates not only the self-evident aesthetic advantages of historic preservation, but also the potential for preservation to help promote economic development, community planning, tourism, environmental sensitivity, and land-use planning.

The above short descriptions are meant to orient the reader to the NeSHPO programs within the larger mission of the NSHS. As all NeSHPO programs originate from a common source – the National Historic Preservation Act – they work best when they are used together, either in whole or in part. For the programs to function at all, they require the interest and participation of the people they are meant to serve . . . the public.
